God's Creation's Reveal His Truths for Success

Embedded in the fabric of the universe are masterful illustrations of God's ways, His will, and His unchangeable character. These incontrovertible, unchangeable, indisputable, and infallible truths for personal success will transform your life forever.

Properous is the one who understands that a life without vision is utterly destitute. For with vision, seemingly unattainable treasures will become his legacy.

Hold captive in the last history of ancient days are secrets which may only be discovered in the revolutions of the distant future. For we know that after the founding of the earth when all living things were covered by water that those who were spared went out to sea, there arose in search of a sign of life. Hope for a renewed earth and a future filled with promise was renewed when the olive returned bearing an olive branch. What unknown strength and fortitude did the ancient olive tree possess? How did it survive such cataclysmic destruction and live to bloom and bear fruit once again? What unknown secret does the olive tree hold for the customs of man?

In planting an olive grove, one must count the changes and chances of Nature for longer or bolder a measure crop, owing that a crop of fifty. For many who toil in the orchard, their children The planting of the olive grove must be carried. Each tree should be separated from the others. The olive tree is the olive tree. It bears, not in the fruit. The olive tree is most susceptible to the crop will become sterile, leaving a barren fruiting is a highly judicious act. It protects the for the olive tree is a wild passion. The entire grove must know the individual needs of each. he grows each specimen taking into account penetration of sunlight. That which appears through the master grower's acts of vision.

What wisdom requires the olive tree to experience being forth from its essence? Although many for olive tree will liberate six months of thought for consequence. Distinctive olive do not come from suspension quality into young trees which Harvesters look forward to the well-earned tree autumn delivers fruit in shades of deep green. In full, the fruit must be gathered before it turns cannot help but reflect on the past year when it those who planted, planted and pruned have. The fruit you hold in your hand is not your own expectation for generations before you. That is their fruit; theirs is the cultivator who follows worked for things they could not see, you would today cease to dream, would not the Future's, size and ancient olive tree?

Joyful is the one who denies himself with lamentation. For the decisions he makes for Truth's sake will return to him abundant consolation.

For millennia the seasons have changed with consistency. As winter welcomes springtime and summer falls into the colors of autumn, there remains amidst the seasonal change the steadfast nature of the seed. Empowered in the tiny seed is a grand mystery, indeed a revelation, of how death brings life.

The seed holds the source of identity for all flora in creation. Each seed transmits the unique particularities of its species. Over unfathomable periods of growth, distasteful through dimensions of time, the seedbed defends the promise of life will remain dormant for only a brief moment in a season or for thousands of favorable growing environments, it will wake to its true purpose. Indeed, animals forage for thousands of years have quickly sprung to life when grain, night, woodlands, herbaceous plants and flowers find their substance of a seed.

Germination is the spark that begins the process of delivering the embryo maturity in the light of the sun. This occurs when light, a cold night or water is from dormancy. Once aroused from its confining sleep, it begins in the order of life. Through this cycle of transformation a great mystery sacrifices itself to death by decomposition and consumption in order to those who planted, planted and pruned have.

As the seed germinates and plant growth begins, nourishment is derived the seed. The seed's programmed intention begins to spring to life. Each heart of the seemingly dead seed to quickly change develops in color happens slowly, for some and rapidly, for others as surrounding conditions environmental differences, extensive and different results may occur in all conditions transform fledgling plants showing volumes of their intelligent substance. Growth for dissimilar species varies greatly; the southern

The seed waits in anticipation of the changing seasons. Will the wind let currents to that about the waves of the sea? Night a heavy quiet being field? Perhaps one of the earth's creators will pluck it up and carry it to time. He will live and merely sleep into a rock bed resting forever in resurrection life? Being in the balance. A decision must be made: do retreat and multiply life.

Let be when a seed bears from the seed. In choosing death, the singular benefits for all fruit for harvest, shade for comfort and beauty for the bring some for a season, that decisive action opens a door of endlessness and the falling rain, a new plant rises from the earth, yielding new.

Wealthy will be the one who humbly embraces virtue. For discipline will bring him golden treasures throughout his earthly sojourn.

Once again, the sun rises in the morning and is faithful to warm the earth world-dark. Then, with the falling of a few grains of sand to the hour glass, the marvel of the night sky unveils a timeless and unchanging record of all that was and that which is to be. What story does the glimmering canopy present? Are these treasures hidden in plain sight waiting to be shared with others everyone? Does the constellations' stories begin as the Virgin brings forth a child and concludes with the triumphant Lion? Do not the Twelve measure the price of liberation for all? Is not the Archer's arrow poised to strike a mortal blow to the head of the dreaded serpent? Are these ancient images of the night a celestial chart of eternal truths, past, present and to come?

One thing is known of the heavens: when the sun sets, the heavenly light flicker across the sky as a daily reminder informing mankind that the celestial bodies labor without ceasing. Night upon night the major and minor stars choreograph with precision and punctuality. Even after forty days and nights of rain, the same band of twinkling stars appeared sitting a message of hope to the night sky. Without disappointment, we observe seasonal change by the intelligent lines of our sparkling constellations. Man's journey is confidently guided through the night's darkness by the persistent presence of these distant beacons. Through the rotation of the heavenly bodies, Nature is called to reproduce and rest in due season. In the deliberate election of partners who are suited to prosper, great wisdom is found. Keep may be worshipped as gods, only to die and be forgotten. Yet the boundless darkness of the night's shining lights remains before us as ready reminders of their commitment to earthly laborers.

Wisdoms are the major and minor constellations' linked relationships. For even our sun, moon and earth consistently sing in harmony. Should the sun forget to rise or the moon neglect to hold back its influence on the tides of the earth, or for one day, the earth abandon its duty to hold the continents together, all would suffer and be lost. If this trine association were to accept a fleeting partner in its exquisitely choreographed dance, instant death and destruction would end the song which has been sung for millennia.

In the great distances of space, the silence of the sunnier is broken as the morning stars sing and speak in single chorused words of life, encouragement and love. They breathe words of light beyond to new generations. For a good seed abides forever, in the hearts of every generation. Indeed, the great words of the celestial realm embrace the twinkling stars. The Twin and Water Bearers chart a melody of eternal life. This song, sung year to year, carries the constellations to join hands and dance, night after night, year upon year, life-time to life-time. As surely as the stars travel through the heavens, their words ring out from the twinkling bodies we observe. They perform with confidence for an each evening - age to age the same. Were there but one whirring word of destruction, what song could remain?

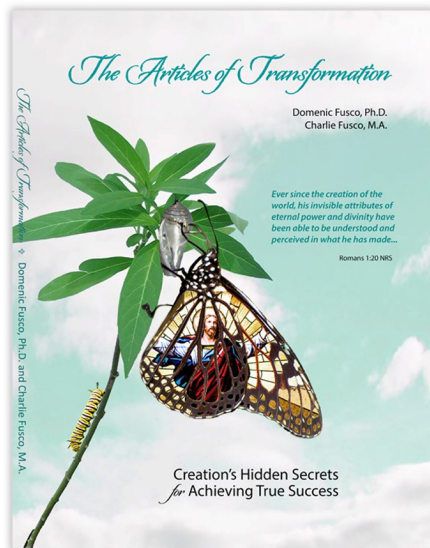

Concerning the truths of labor, fellowship and words, we receive with understanding the humble lesson who shall become a mighty Lion. Discipline paves the road to any destination, even to an unmarked star. In discipline's path, you will walk your feet and reality strike a mortal blow to the enemies of your destiny. Greatly prompt in the wisdom of the heavens, observing their disciplines in the glory of the moonlight and under the blanket of the celestial night sky.

The Olive Tree The Seed and The Constellations

The Articles of Transformation offer God's remarkable creations as tutors on your quest to find the secrets of true success. Layer upon layer, uncover the keys to your bright future hidden in plain sight.

Read the amazing story of how The Articles of Transformation have been passed down from generation to generation.

It is the glory of God to conceal a thing: but the honor of kings is to search out a matter.

Proverbs 25:2 KJV

It's time for a cultural revolution!

“The Articles of Transformation address the core challenge we all face as Christians: personally developing the character of Christ. Using God’s creations as our tutors in combination with Scripture provides powerful illustrations making it easy to understand God's will, His ways, and His truth that leads to spiritual transformation. Personal discovery exercises and journaling for reflection, provided in bite-sized segments, adds layer upon layer of understanding and discipline without overwhelming students with lengthy studies. The twenty-one lessons offer ample transformational opportunities.

I personally recommend this series to any individual; but most heartily, I urge every ministry leader to utilize this tool to promote church growth. This approach is not unlike the model of the first century church. Now, we can use this brilliant, technically savvy, scriptural series to point a new generation to the high calling of God. It's time for a cultural revolution!”

Building a Successful Ministry, Business or Relationships Begins by Building a Better YOU!

Most people want to be successful in life: in their relationships, career, and calling. Sadly, they simply don't know how. The Articles of Transformation shares God's plan for living a successful life and provides techniques and exercises needed to discover the "what" and "how" for transforming you into your greatest potential.

Character is not bought. Character is built!

Behind every adventure in achievement there is a story about character. The difference in living a life of quiet desperation or finding gratifying success can be attributed to the possession, or lack thereof, of Godly character attributes. The very definition for character makes it clear that character is tied to morality.

char·ac·ter \ˈker-ik-tər, ˈka-rik-\
moral excellence and firmness

The Merriam-Webster Unabridged Dictionary

If you could choose ONE person in all of history whose character you would desire to emulate, who would that be? Wouldn't it be the ONE that perfected character? Imagine for a moment that you possess the divine power and character attributes of the greatest person ever revealed in human flesh. Imagine possessing His compassion, knowledge, wisdom, grace, and power. Be an imitator of God and you will.

The Articles of Transformation series is no different. Lessons are incremental allowing the student to make gradual strides in understanding the content, and most importantly, applying the principles through the Personal Discovery Exercises which are integral to achieving true success.

This coursework is currently available for college credit and certification:
Logos University, Aiden University and nRichU.

...Build up the body of Christ until we all reach the unity of the faith...
growing into a mature man with the stature measured by Christ's fullness.

Ephesians 4:12-13 NASB

A typical one hour class:

1. Each session begins with a 12 to 15 minute video. Students view to the brief lesson.
2. The student fills out one of the exercises in the Personal Discovery Journal.
3. Open the room for discussion. Students explain what spiritual principle(s) they discovered.

Close with prayer for guidance and inspiration .

*These Articles should be mandatory coursework for all high-school students.
What a way to start out in life!*

“Domenic and I have successfully worked together as motivational speakers for a number of organizations. I had the good fortune of listening to a complete set of his Articles of Transformation while on a long road trip. I believe his systematic approach to personal growth will build the character attributes necessary to succeed in life: personal and business. These Articles should be mandatory coursework for all high school students. What a way to start out in life!”

The Mentor's Round Table

The Mentor's Round Table is designed for small, highly-relational study groups. Whether gathering in a home, church, institutional setting or via on-line conferencing, a Mentor/Facilitator will introduce students to God's Word and the character principles revealed in The Articles of Transformation's nature studies. Round table interactions will guide the student's transformation and help them realize God's individual plan for their lives.

Just as the early church learned from Christ and the Apostles how to be transformed into the image of God, Round Table members will gather to learn from their elders (mentors). Over time, they will experience personal transformation and be equipped to share the Good News they have discovered with the world that is in desperate need of what they possess.

Let's Start a Spiritual Revolution!

There is a massive, untapped people group in need of spiritual transformation. Eighty million strong, they have been profiled under the name "Millennials". Researchers and commentators use birth years ranging from the early 1980s to the early 2000s to define this demographic. There are a few obvious characteristics this group holds in common. Having been immersed life-long in technology, they depend on the internet via cell phones and personal computers for communicating, buying, sourcing information, news, entertainment, and even to meet potential mates. Their reliance on high speed internet has forced the market place to react quicker to this generation's instant digital demands. "Millennials" are education-minded and embrace an entrepreneurial spirit far greater than the previous "X Generation" or "Baby Boomers". They have forced educational institutions to change their historic standards (teacher talks/students listen format) to a more relational and flexible learning environment: hence the explosion of on-line and distance learning.

What does this mean for the Church?

How do we change this seemingly self-indulgent generation to a sacrificial Christian profile?

As you are looking ahead, and planning to evangelize and grow your ministry, "Millennials" (80 million plus teens and young adults) should be in the center of your ministry outreach projections. They are the future of the Christian faith. But first, you must engage this highly secularized, non-church-attending audience.

Becoming market driven or adapting to Madison Avenue's self-appealing campaigns is not the answer as many who have tried the "user friendly" approach have discovered.

Most ministries are on the same page with this: the Bible is not a fluid document that changes to meet people's whims. It is a divinely inspired manual with absolutes to guide people toward personal success where it really counts.

Following Jesus' example in every way is the key to cultural engagement. He perfected it. One on one, Jesus spoke to the specifics lacking in people's lives and pointed them to God by telling stories. He also used the highest technology of His day when he rowed off shore using the moisture of the Sea of Galilee to carry His voice to thousands of people on the amphitheater shaped hillside.

Think about the early church. For the most part, the disciples of Christ met in small groups from house to house and were discipled by those who had first-hand relationships with the Lord or His Apostles. There was interaction, evangelism, and the building up of followers in the faith through teaching and demonstration. After they were taught, they were sent out two by two to impact their community and beyond for Christ.

Why not duplicate the model of the early church. In addition to developing personal relationships, we should utilize technology where it applies? The entrepreneurial spirit of the educationally-minded, non-political, truth-seeking "Millennials" will find what they are seeking through The Articles of Transformation. Insight (information) on how to achieve success, peace, and prosperity are top priorities and keys to reaching today's culture. Using the technology they depend upon... demand... is the icing on the cupcake.

Imagine small groups of people forming other small groups and duplicating the outreach time and again.

The model: 7 people mentoring 7 people, 7 times over.
In the next few years that amounts to over 800,000 people.

THE DISTINCTION

The distinction between the teachings of The Articles of Transformation and the personal growth teachings of most self-help gurus and motivational speakers is that the ultimate goal of success is realized not through human effort, but through dependence on God's wisdom, grace, and guidance. Putting aside "self", and embracing God wholly, is at the center of your transformation.

Self-help by definition declares the "godhood of man": the complete reliance on self rather than the Creator. Job's pride in his own goodness resulted in the loss of his prosperity of mind, body, and substance. His associates relied on human experience, tradition, and human merit. Yet, wiser than his friends, Job saw the error of his ways. Humbling himself before the Creator, he acknowledged his total dependence on God who then restored him doubly.

Trust GOD from the bottom of your heart; don't try to figure out everything on your own. Listen for GOD's voice in everything you do, everywhere you go; He's the one who will keep you on track.
